Formulation information

Supplier materials highlight plant-derived PDRN, hyaluronic acid, niacinamide, panthenol and plant-derived vesicle ingredients described as exosomes. The combination differs by product; request the current SKU-specific INCI list and ingredient specification. Review formulation and performance documentation for the exact product version proposed for your market.

Use and product scope

Use as topical cosmetics according to the current product label. The brochure describes mist application, followed by ampoule application, with Skinbooster as an additional evening format. Confirm suitability for combining products. No injection, wound-healing, scar-treatment or post-procedure indication is offered here.

Buyer and channel fit

For skincare importers, distributors and established beauty retail partners evaluating a coordinated facial-care collection. Review sample texture, skin feel, packaging performance, price positioning and the fit with your existing assortment.

Before placing an order

Product: confirm current pack size, formula, full INCI list, directions, precautions and shelf life.
Evidence: request product-specific safety and quality documents and substantiation for the exact cosmetic claims proposed in your market.
Commercial: confirm samples, MOQ, wholesale terms, lead time, territory and channel availability.
Market: review local classification, labeling and import requirements before sale.
